b. Area outpatient medical service is provided in Dalat, Cam Ranh Bay, Phan Rang, Nha Trang, and Tuy Hoa.

7. Training. This command experienced no unusual problems in the training field.

8. Intelligence. This command experienced no unusual problems in the intelligence field.

9. Logistics. Except as indicated in Section 2, this command experienced no unusual problems in the logistics field.

Section 2. Commander's Recommendations and Lessons Learned.

1. Personnel.

a. Item: 563d Medic 1 Company (Clearing) was not fully deployable upon Personnel Readiness Date.

b. Discussion: The 563d Medical Company (Clearing) deployed to the Republic of Vietnam seriously understrength; accumulative shortages approximated one (1) platoon.

c. Recommendation: That units not deploy until personnel fill is accomplished in COMUS.

2. Logistics.

a. Item: Red Circle TAT equipment does not in fact accompany troops from time of arrival at port of debarkation to final destination, nor is it immediately available upon arrival in country.

b. Discussion: Red Circle TAT for the 563d Medical Company (Clearing) has not been received by the company since arrival on 16 September 1966.

c. Recommendation: That unit advance parties have packing lists for Red Circle TAT available upon arrival in country enabling sponsors to plan for receipt, storage, transportation, and security; and that transportation of personnel and equipment to unit area be effected concurrently.

d. Item: Equipment Readiness Dates are not met and equipment issued is not ready for use upon receipt.

e. Discussion: The 440th Medical Detachment (RB) had an Equipment Readiness Date (ERD) of 3 August 1966; vehicles were issued on 11 August 1966 and were immediately prepared for overseas shipment on 16

August 1966 although they were mechanically unready. Technical inspections conducted upon arrival in country revealed numerous shortcomings and deficiencies, none attributable to shipment damage, which had to be corrected before the vehicles could be placed in service. Eleven (11) major items had to be replaced: six (6) tires, two (2) starters, one (1) head gasket, one (1) clutch assembly, and one (1) gas pump. In addition vehicle OEM and OVM were missing.

f. Recommendation: That strict POM standards be adhered to by loading CONUS unit and that unit shipment dates be adjusted when readiness of personnel or equipment indicates that such is necessary.

g. Item: Accurate information concerning arrival of unit equipment in country is not provided the gaining unit.

h. Discussion: In each instance where units of this command have received official notification of estimated time and place of arrival of equipment, such time and place have not in fact been adhered to. In attempts to locate ships bearing unit equipment and to effect discharge of the equipment at a port reasonably located near the gaining unit many hours of valuable time have been wasted and too much apparently unnecessary trans-shipment has had to be accomplished.

i. Recommendation: Docking and sailing times of vessels having unit equipment be adjusted to meet the needs of the gaining unit.

SUBJECT: Operational Report-Lessons Learned For Quarterly Period Ending 31 October 1966, Reports Control Symbol CSFOR-65

HEADQUARTERS, 43d Medical Group, APO 96240, 14 November 1966

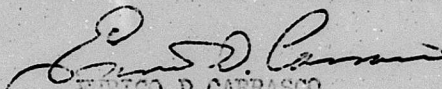

TO: Commanding Officer, 44th Medical Brigade, APO 96307

1. Concur with Paragraph 1 Section II. In-country fill of newly arrived understrength units places an undue strain on current assets.

2. Concur with Paragraph 2c, Section II Red Circle TAT equipment by regulation is to accompany troops and be available upon arrival at destination. It is possible for units to become separated from TAT equipment. To preclude loss of this equipment unit commanders should place guards or similar escort personnel with equipment at port of debarkation. These personnel should accompany equipment until arrival at final destination. Units who have, in the past, followed this practice, have precluded loss of equipment.

3. Concur with Paragraph 2f, Section II.

4. Non-concur with Paragraph 2i, Section II. It is understood that ports of debarkation and sailing times of vessels carrying unit TOE are subject to change up until the time these vessels begin to discharge cargo. The factors involved are too numerous to outline herein. This headquarters makes every attempt to provide subordinate units with the latest information available on cargo vessel sailings by constant liaison with transportation agencies.
