14. ABSTRACT

We propose to perform a phase I/II study comparing two nutraceuticals and placebo that target mediators identified in our prior dynamic modeling study of Gulf War Illness (GWI). We will repeat the dynamic modeling before treatment and on therapy to assess our modeling and the impact of the interventions on the homeostatic networks we have identified, with an added focus on the glutathione/redox system.

In our prior study "Dynamic Modeling in GWI" we used an exercise stress model (rest, peak VO₂, and 7 follow-up sampling points) to measure the mediators of relapse in the context of their interactive homeostatic networks. We surveyed the response of genes and blood-borne biomarkers in order to interrogate and map regulation of neuro-endocrine-autonomic-immune function in these subjects as compared to GW era sedentary healthy controls. We applied an integrative-systems-based approach rooted in computational biology connecting gene expression and biomarkers to pathways and to symptoms in order to identify potential therapeutic targets as well as optimal strategies for manipulation of these targets. Using this data, we have developed a virtual model of the illness, which we have used to identify potential therapeutic targets. The proposed project is directed at the validation of pharmacologic mediation of illness targets for GWI, identified using an integrative systems-based approach to the study of molecular and cellular markers.

Introduction

Within months after their return from Operation Desert Storm an alarming number of Gulf War veterans began to report a variety of symptoms, including fatigue, musculoskeletal discomfort, skin rashes, and cognitive dysfunction. During deployment, these troops were subjected to a number of potentially hazardous conditions and multiple hypotheses as to the etiology of Gulf War Illness (GWI) have been considered. The symptoms of (GWI) that are most consistently reported include those which are often reported in Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (CFS). The objective of this study is to improve our understanding of GWI pathogenesis in two ways; by integration across several of the body's regulatory systems of data and knowledge collected from disparate sources, and by mapping of the coordinated interactions between these physiologic systems and the potential for altered "wiring" of these signaling networks in GWI. Using comprehensive molecular profiling, network and control theory the overarching objective of this proposal is to define the precise nature of these irregularities in immune and neuroendocrine signaling as well as the altered activation states of the corresponding cells such that treatment courses can be designed to redirect the system as a whole to normal pattern of coordinated activity.

Body

As noted above, this project involves a clinical trial that serves as both a proof of concept study, using nutraceuticals that target nfkB, identified in our modeling studies, performing before an after dynamic modeling studies of the study volunteers, and refining our modeling work as a result. It should be noted that we have a number of funded studies that aim to improve the modeling that would lead to clinical trials, and all of the data collected in this study serves as data used by our computational modeling staff to test both the utility of intervening at nfkB (in the case of this study) and to provide an increasingly rich and complex data set to inform the other aspects of their studies.

In this study we have a SOW. It should be noted that the start time of the recruitment was delayed by a prolonged HRPO process submitted on our notice of approval in Sept 2015 after a HRPO pre-review and IRB approval; it was HRPO approved April 2016, thus recruitment began shortly afterwards. We have reset our recruitment projections accordingly, still with the intent to complete this study in the 3 year window without the need for carry over funding. We have doubled our recruitment efforts to achieve numbers. To help with recruitment the CSP #585, "Gulf War Era Cohort and Biorepository (GWECB) group has mailed our flyers to thousands of their previous Gulf War survey participants. We are also looking into ways of possibly increasing payments for enrollment to see if this will help with retaining subjects.

Key Research Accomplishments

A 2nd no cost extension was approved in the beginning of the October 2019. A total of twenty-seven GWI subjects have been screened and consented and enrolled, nine have withdrawn. Seventeen participants have completed the study and one other participant is currently on the study protocol and five are scheduled for screening. Thus, the randomized clinical trial is underway.

Our recruitment was halted for 2 quarters due ReadiSorb, the company that manufactures L-Glutathione shutdown production in order to replace their equipment. They reinitiated their production of L-Glutathione in June of this year. We received the product on June 28, 2019 and since then we continued to double our recruitment efforts and aim to have all recruitment completed by February 2020.

We intend to extend the number of subjects studied by offering an option to participate using an online assessment platform. This will allow subjects who live in areas outside a reasonable catchment area to participate in this study. We currently have a list of 1200 potential participants that have expressed interest in future research studies and have informed consent for contact for future studies. We will use this resource to recruit, perform comprehensive prescreening, and enroll study eligible patients. Labs will be drawn by a home phlebotomy service and sent overnight to our laboratories for processing. This will allow the primary and secondary outcome variables to be assessed and will allow the study to be completed in this extension year. This amendment will be submitted to the IRB by the end of this month and will be reviewed and approved by HRPO before this component of the study is initiated.

Dr. Richard Deth is the partnering PI at NSU for the companion project addressing Specific Aim 3. Specific aim 3 involves assessment of antioxidant and methylation-related metabolic status prior to, during and after acute exercise in GWI subjects before and after antioxidant interventions. These measurements will be carried out with batched plasma and PBMC samples, he has been provided the samples of the subjects that have completed treatment. A research technician has been hired whose effort is dedicated to this project. In support of these assays a new HPLC system was purchased by Nova Southeastern University and methods for analysis of antioxidant and methylation pathway metabolites as well as vitamin B12 (cobalamin species) have been developed for the new instrument. Assays for measuring global and mitochondrial DNA methylation status have also been developed and are ready for samples. He has also been provided with samples from a large cross-sectional biorepository, and has been working with Dr. Shungu to run the samples from his NAC study in GWI... He will be submitting a separate progress report.

The immunology and screening labs are also managed through the Deth partnered project with the INIM Immunology labs, these samples are processed as they are received and the data sets of immune, cell subtype and cell function have been performed on a rolling basis.

Reportable Outcomes

A total of 9 participants have been completed the study in Group A, 4 in Group B and 3 in Group C. Preliminary data has been captured on Flow cytometry and NK cell function on each participant. Additional assays (Multiplex Cytokine Analysis, Catecholamines, Hormones, Cortisol and Nanostring gene expression analysis) will be run in equal groups of 4. Initial review of NK cell function suggests an increase in NK cell function at T0 after treatment in group A (Fig 1). A decrease in NK cell function is suggested at T0 after treatment in groups B and C. However, an increase in the number participants in each group are need for stronger analysis.

Conclusions

Preliminary testing on thiol and glutathione levels show changes after treatment (See attached). Final testing will be performed when all subjects have completed the study.

Miami VAMC AIDS Clinical and Research Unit Developed and wrote the proposal for the Miami VAMC AIDS Clinical and Research Unit, which was one of 3 selected for funding. The proposal included 3 million dollars in construction funds as well as infrastructure support. This resulted in one of the top VA HIV/AIDS clinical and research programs in the US, which is still in operation. Dr Klimas is Director of AIDS Research and Co-director of the Clinical HIV/AIDS program at the Miami VAMC. 1987 to present

South Florida CFS and GWI Research Center : Initially funded with an NIH center grant (Klimas, PI), and since supported with NIH , VA, DOD, and private foundation grants, the center is a clinical , translational, and basic science center that integrates research across disciplines. Current studies include genomics, immune, neuroendocrine studies , a natural history study, and clinical trials. Dr. Klimas is Center PI and coordinates the research efforts of four research interdisciplinary groups.

6 month deployment CDC 2001 –, Molecular Epidemiology Program Viral Exanthems and Herpesvirus Branch, Developed the international protocol currently underway to empirically define CFS.

IACFS/ME

Dr. Klimas served as President of the International Association for Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (A national professional organization of investigators and clinicians) from 2005-2007 and was re-elected for another 3-year term in January of 2007. She organized the IACFS conference in Fort Lauderdale in January, 2007, and the conference in Reno Nevada in March 2009. Each of these conferences were attended by 400 patients and 350 professionals, and provided a unique opportunity for patients to meet and talk with leading international researchers and clinicians.

CFSAC: Chronic Fatigue Syndrome Advisory Committee

In 1996, Secretary for Health Donna Shalala chartered a special committee to advise the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) on policy regarding chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), also known as chronic fatigue and immune dysfunction syndrome or CFIDS or Myalgic Encephalomyelopathy (ME). This committee, known as the DHHS Chronic Fatigue Syndrome Coordinating Committee (CFSCC), brought together officials representing various health agencies together with seven appointed members of the public to improve coordination of federal CFS programs. A year 2000 review of federal activities on CFS conducted by the General Accounting Office prompted several changes. Among them was the replacement of the CFSCC with a standing committee, the CFS Advisory Committee (CFSAC), whose structure more closely matched other DHHS advisory bodies. Secretary Michael Leavitt most recently renewed the charter on August 30, 2006. Nancy Klimas served on this committee from 1997 to 2000. She was reappointed to another three-year term on the committee in 2007, which has been extended to 2011. She chairs the quality of life and education subcommittees.

NSU COM Institute for Neuro-Immune Medicine: A newly conceived program using clinical care templates to help diagnose and manage complex CFS/ME cases while collecting research data and developing the patient base for clinical trials work. Working with a basics science pathogenesis team, a computational biology team and a biomarkers discovery group, the institute merges clinical care with scientific discovery to promote new knowledge that can be applied to clinical care through rapidly employed translational clinical trials.
