ABSTRACT (Continue on reverse side if necessary and identify by block number) This two-part bibliography surveys the military and current events literature on prisoners of war as related to the U.S. Code of Conduct as it applies to Department of Defense members. Selections have been made from the holdings of the Morris Swett Library, USAFAS.

FOREWORD

This two-part bibliography surveys the military literature on the subject of prisoners of war (POW's) and the Code of Conduct for United States Department of Defense members who, of necessity, will be operating in circumstances which may subject them to detention by hostile forces. This may occur in both war and non-war situations.

This number is arranged in parts as indicated by the table of contents below. Although revised several times since being introduced as a code by President Eisenhower on 17 August 1955, it is based on time-honored precepts which date to the beginnings of our country. Selections have been made from the holdings of the Morris Swett Library, USAFAS. Inclusion of an item, or omission, does not imply indorsement or sanction of the compiler's point-of-view by the school.

CODE OF THE U.S. FIGHTING FORCE, DAP 360-512, dtd 1979.

"I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense. I will never surrender of my own free will. If in command, I will never surrender my men while they still have the means to resist. If I am captured, I will continue to resist by all means available. I will make every effort to escape and aid others to escape. I will accept neither parole nor special favors from the enemy. If I become a prisoner of war, I will keep faith with my fellow prisoners. I will give no information or take part in any action which might be harmful to my comrades. If I am senior, I will take command. If not, I will obey the lawful orders of those appointed over me and will back them up in every way. When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am required to give name, rank, service number, and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause. I will never forget that I am an American fighting man, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and in the United States of America."
