IV. STANDARD CONDITION OF U.S. MILITARY INVENTORY MATERIEL

- A. All materiel, except aircraft, furnished to MAP recipients from the U.S. military inventory will meet the serviceability standards prescribed by departmental technical instructions for the same materiel furnished to operational units of U.S. forces in overseas theaters. For aircraft previously in service, time change items will be replaced if the remaining service time at time of acceptance by recipient will be less than 50% of time between overhauls. Equipment will be complete with all accessories needed to perform the mission for which it is intended.
- B. New or unused materiel furnished to MAP recipients from the U.S. military inventory will be inspected and where necessary functionally tested to assure serviceability.
- C. Used major items of equipment will be cleaned and painted or otherwise refurbished as required to present a good uniform appearance and meet the objective stated in Paragraphs III. A. and C., above. Good appearance is intended not only to create an immediate favorable impression, but to be tangible evidence that the equipment has been overhauled and is in condition for immediate operational use without further repair or rehabilitation. Appearance standards should not require excessive expense to create a false "like new" appearance, and should normally apply only to external surfaces and appurtenances such as tires, canvas, glass, floor mats, etc.

V. EXCEPTIONS TO STANDARD CONDITION OF U.S. MILITARY INVENTORY MATERIEL

- A. Exceptions to the foregoing standards may be recommended by Commanders of Unified Commands on a case-by-case basis.
- B. In making requests for exceptions to the standards, due consideration will be given to the recipients' technical capabilities as well as to the political, military, and economic situation involved.
- C. Any recommendation for an exception to a condition standard which will cost more than the condition standard stated in Section IV. above will be forwarded by the Commander of the Unified Command through the military department or the DSA for approval by the Director of Military Assistance, OASD(ISA). To the extent such recommendations relate to increased costs for improved appearance, the recommendation of the Chief of the Diplomatic Mission will be included.

- D. Any recommendation from a commander of a Unified Command to transfer materiel which is below the standards in Section IV., above, will be approved by the military departments or the DSA as appropriate. The military departments and DSA will maintain a record of each transfer of materiel approved under the provisions of this paragraph.
- E. Cost estimate for materiel to be provided under exceptions to standards prescribed herein will be furnished by a military department or the DSA upon request of a Unified Commander or the Director of Military Assistance.

VI. IMPLEMENTATION

Each military department and the Defense Supply Agency will issue instructions to implement this instruction within 60 days, and will notify the Assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs) of action taken, by submitting two copies of each implementing instruction.

VII. EFFECTIVE DATE

This instruction is effective immediately.
