PEOPLE

Active duty forces in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force number 1.5 million, with another 1.7 million in the Ready and Standby Reserves, and nearly 1 million civilians.

PLACES

More than 560 military installations and properties. But as DoD shrinks, the number of installations and properties also shrinks. DoD has closed many bases, installations and properties overseas. The base closure and realignment commission has recommended to close major bases in the United States.

MONEY

The fiscal 1997 budget continues the Clinton administration's Future Years Defense Program. This carries on the recommendations of the Bottom-up Review that examined what forces the U.S. military would need in the Post-Cold War world. The president requested $242 billion in budget authority for defense. As a share of America's gross domestic product, DoD outlays fell to 3.4 percent in fiscal 1996, well below any time since before World War II.

ORGANIZATION

The Department of Defense is a Cabinet-level organization. Reporting to it are the three military departments (Army, Navy and Air Force) and 16 defense agencies. The four armed services are subordinate to their military departments. The Marine Corps is a second armed service in the Department of the Navy. The military departments are responsible for recruiting, training and equipping their forces, but operational control of those forces is assigned to one of the unified combatant commands, which currently are: U.S. European Command, U.S. Pacific Command, U.S. Atlantic Command, U.S. Southern Command, U.S. Central Command, U.S. Space Command, U.S. Special Operations Command, U.S. Transportation Command and U.S. Strategic Command.

OPERATIONAL CONTROL of U.S. combat forces is assigned to the nation's unified combat commands. A unified combatant command is composed of forces from two or more services, has a broad and continuing mission and is normally organized on a geographical basis. The number of unified combatant commands is not fixed by law or regulation and may vary from time to time.

THE DEFENSE BUDGET

BUDGET AUTHORITY is the authority permitted by federal law to incur financial obligations that will result in outlays. Outlays are a measure of government spending. They represent payments to liquidate obligations, usually by issuing checks or disbursing cash.

The fiscal 1996 budget continues the Clinton administration's Future Years Defense Program which runs through 2001. The fiscal 1997 DoD budget request is $242 billion in budget authority.

The figures reflect the president's budget transmitted to Congress in March 1996.

*Federal, state and local net spending excluding government enterprises (such as the U.S. Postal Service and public utilities) except for any support these activities receive from tax funds.

Small Business

THROUGH its procurement program, DoD award contracts to over 30,000 small businesses throughout the country. The contract dollars result in the creation of hundreds of thousands of jobs in local communities. Defense prime contractors also award billions of dollars to many of these same firms. As a result, small businesses play a major role in the defense industrial base and have a tremendous impact on the economic security of the nation.

GUARD & RESERVE

AS OF MAY 31, 1996

THE READY RESERVE is the major source of manpower augmentation for the active force. It includes Selected Reserve units, pretrained individual reservists and a training pipeline. Selected Reserve units are organized, equipped and trained to perform a wartime mission. Members of Selected Reserve units train throughout the year and participate annually in active duty training. Pretrained individual reservists include individual mobilization augmentees, members of the Inactive National Guard and individual ready reservists. The Individual Ready Reserve generally consists of people who have served recently in the active forces or Selected Reserve and have some period of obligated service remaining on their contract. The majority of the members in the Individual Ready Reserve do not participate in organized training.

CIVILIAN PERSONNEL

AS OF MAY 31, 1996

MOST CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES of the Department of Defense are hired directly by the military departments, the defense agencies or the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and are designated as "direct hire" civilians. In general, salaried personnel are described as "blue collar."

In a few foreign countries, substantial numbers of foreign nationals, who are technically employees of the host country (or an agency of that government), are assigned to work with U.S. forces under contracts or agreements with the host government. These foreign nationals are designated "indirect hire" civilians.

Military Medicine

Keeping American service members ready to fight is the primary mission of military medical professionals. In addition, however, DoD provides medical care to millions of beneficiaries around the world.

The department operates 116 hospitals and about 500 clinics in its health care system. The DoD medical budget is more than $9.8 billion in fiscal 1996.

A major DoD health care effort is establishing the TRICARE military health care plan worldwide. Officials expect TRICARE to be totally in place by the end of fiscal 1997.

Medical personnel are also called on to support military deployments around the world. Medical personnel provided care for more than 50,000 Haitian and Cuban migrants at Guantanamo Naval Base, Cuba. They deployed to support American service members in Haiti. Medical professionals from all services supported the U. N. peacekeeping force in Zagreb, Croatia, since 1993. There has been a major health care effort to support Americans deployed to Bosnia as part of Operation Joint Endeavor.

International Security Relationships

THE SECURITY of our friends and allies contributes directly to the security of the United States. For more than 30 years, the United States has made available materials, services and training to friendly countries to enable them to improve their own defense capabilities.

The Department of Defense administers several elements of the Security Assistance Program, three of which are Foreign Military Sales, the Military Assistance Program and the International Military Education and Training Program.

□ Foreign Military Financing is a grant and loan program by which selected friends and allies can finance the acquisition of defense articles and defense services.

□ Foreign Military Sales is a program through which DoD sells defense articles, defense services and training to foreign governments.

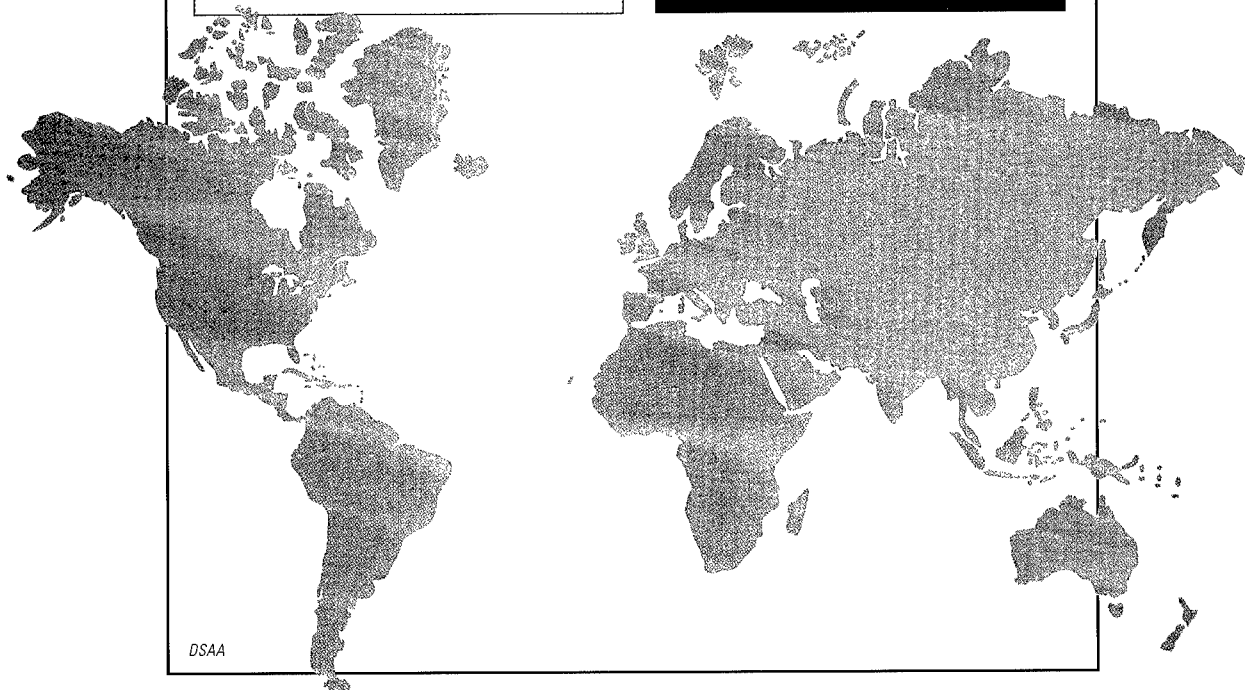

□ International Military Education and Training provides training and training support to foreign personnel as grant assistance.

*Authoritative statistics for the Confederate forces are not available. Estimates of the number who served range from 600,000 to 1,500,000. The Final Report of the Provost Marshal General, 1863-1866, indicated 133,821 Confederate deaths (74,524 battle and 59,297 other) based on incomplete returns. In addition, an estimated 26,000 to 31,000 Confederate personnel died in Union prisons.

All figures this row include Army air forces.

Date hostilities officially terminated by presidential proclamation.

Number serving covers the period Aug. 4, 1964, through Jan. 27, 1973 (date of cease-fire). Wounds not mortal exclude 150,332 persons not requiring hospital care. Known status of casualties is as of Sept. 30, 1993.

*Tentative final data based on information available as of Sept. 30, 1954, at which time 24 persons were still carried as missing in action. Army casualties of 2,452 are as reported in Battle Casualties and Medical Statistics: U.S. Army Experience in the Korean War by Frank Reister, published by the Surgeon General of Department of the Army in 1973. This figure represents nonbattle admissions in Korea and includes deaths resulting from injuries, suicides, homicides and disease.

Installations & Properties

AS THE END of the Cold War neared, the Defense Department began planning to become smaller. The secretary of defense's Commission on Base Realignment and Closures met in 1988 and developed a list of recommended closures which, by statute, the president and Congress could not change, but only approve or disapprove.

Congress passed the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990, which continued the independent commission but made its role one of review. Under the act, the secretary could submit closure recommendations for review in 1991, 1993, and 1995; as before, the president and Congress could approve or disapprove the commission's recommendations, but not modify them.

When the four commissions' recommendations are fully implemented, DoD will have closed 97 major domestic installations and expects annual recurring savings of about $6 billion.

CONGRESS PASSES
THE GOLDWATER-
NICHOLS ACT

THE NATIONAL SECURITY ACT of 1947 created the National Military Establishment, which came into being Sept. 18, 1947. The Army, Navy and Air Force were Cabinet-level executive departments, with the secretary of defense functioning primarily as a coordinator. In 1949, amendments to the National Security Act established the secretary of defense as principal assistant to the president on defense matters and changed the name of the National Military Establishment to the Department of Defense. The amendments also made the military departments subordinate to the Department of Defense and provided for uniform budgetary and fiscal procedures.

Under the Goldwater-Nichols Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1986, the chain of command runs from the president to the secretary of defense to the unified commanders in chief. Orders and other communications from the president or secretary are transmitted through the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.
