SUMMARY

This report describes the initial year's efforts toward the identification, selection and acquisition of chemicals and drugs relating to antiviral chemotherapy. The thrust of the drug development program is on the development of drugs for the prophylaxis or treatment of U.S. military personnel at risk of exposure to natural viral infections and/or altered microorganisms.

Early activities included the following:

1. Investigation and selection of software, hardware, and source databases to manage the collection, manipulation and storage of data.
2. The new VAX database was fully loaded through the process of transferring data from the old HP equipment as well as by entering new data and data from existing paper files.
3. Sources of chemical compounds of interest to the DAS project were located and agreements processed for signature. The timely completion of these agreements is essential to the provision of these compounds.
4. A routine was established for the receipt of compounds, registration in the database, appropriate storage and shipment to contractor laboratories for assay. Test data was compiled and entered into the system.
5. Educational activities included preparation and conduct of a workshop dedicated to assessing the role of immunomodulators in the prevention and treatment of infectious diseases and the preparation of a new version of a brochure describing the DAS program.

Introduction

This report describes the activities and accomplishments of the first year of the project "Identification and Selective Acquisition of Chemicals and Drugs for Antiviral Chemotherapy". Preliminary activities included the investigation and selection of software, hardware, and commercially available databases to most productively support the DAS program and its objective of identifying, selecting, and acquiring scientifically valid compounds for militarily relevant antiviral testing.

Materials and Methods

Using the critical path process to ensure cost-efficiency and timeliness, Technassociates looked into several software packages, hardware configurations, and commercial source databases considered applicable to chemical modeling and chemical information database management. Among the software packages reviewed was one developed by Molecular Design, Ltd. (MDL), as well as NC's Drug Information System, and modeling packages by TRIPOS Associates and Chemical Design, Ltd.

Preliminary contacts were made with several pharmaceutical companies which were identified as potential suppliers of compounds for testing and/or which were known to be leaders in computer-assisted drug development.

Initial planning steps were taken to arrange the first workshop to include scientists from outside the government/DAS community to assess current work within DAS in relation to state-of-the-art research in immunomodulation.

The establishment of a repository of antiviral compounds within the government facility was undertaken and periodic inventories planned.

Results and Discussion

To provide optimal support to the DAS program, Technassociates selected MDL software because it offered the best integration of database management and modeling applications. The hardware decision afforded the best utilization of the MDL software and consisted of a VAX 11/750 minicomputer and the Lear Siegler 7107 terminal on which the software was developed. CAS ONLINE and BIOSIS were chosen as primary source databases, and throughout the year other commercial chemical information databases were also investigated.

Historical data was migrated from the old DAS HP database to the new VAX 11/750 equipment and additional data, not a part of the original HP database, was entered into the new database. Areas of sequestered data were identified and missing data was identified and annotated for initial entry into the VAX.

Open literature references were reviewed and abstracted. Search profiles were developed and tested, and current awareness search profiles were obtained from the databases to provide automatic selection and updates of literature references of interest to the program.

Agreements were reached with pharmaceutical companies interested in supplying compounds for testing. The search continued for new sources of compounds, including Biological Response Modifiers.

A total of 232 compounds were shipped to screening contractors. A shipping summary is shown in Table 1 for compounds sent to Southern Research Institute with the balance going to USAMRIID. Table 2 shows individual samples with in vitro assays requested.

A total of 2039 in vitro assays were performed and entered into the new database during the year. The distribution by testing laboratory was as shown in Table 3. These assays were performed predominately at USAMRIID and Swiftwater and were done prior to the start of this contract. Southern Research Institute participated during the fourth quarter.

Table 4 presents data on compounds testing active, as indicated where the Therapeutic Index was five or greater. This data is sorted by virus and reported chronologically.

Table 5 displays the results received from the testing laboratories during the past year, sorted by virus and displaying AVS number, testing laboratory, testing date, and a positive or negative result.

A workshop was arranged by Technassociates to evaluate and discuss the role of immunomodulators in the prevention and treatment of virus-induced diseases. Participants in the workshop, held at the Sheraton Hotel, Frederick, Maryland, included representatives of USAMRIID, WRAIR, MRDC, other government agencies and the academic and industrial sectors. Topics included a program overview, discussions of current data and presentations given by scientists from outside of USAMRIID. The consensus was to continue present activities and, in future workshops, to focus on specific agents and targets.

A new brochure describing the current DAS program was designed and drafted for review by the COTR. When in final form, it will be sent to all companies or individuals expressing interest in the DAS cooperative antiviral drug development project.

Training of the COTR and his staff was held to familiarize them with the MACCS and DATACCS software. A procedures manual to assist other government personnel to learn the system is being prepared.

Technassociates supported joint effort of the DAS staff and representatives of NIAID to develop tools to assist in the efficient evaluation of drugs for the prevention and treatment of AIDS.

A total of 7,305.5 hours of effort were delivered during the contract period. Many of the tasks for the start-up were serial in nature and depended on the successful completion of a task before initiation or a decision regarding software or hardware in order to pursue two or more subsequent tasks. The total cost with fee for the period was $792,162.23 with $271,896.37 expended as direct labor and overhead.

Conclusions

The database utilized by DAS prior to the current contract was successfully transferred to the VAX 11/750 supported by software licensed from Molecular Design Limited (MDL). This new system provides state-of-the-art pattern recognition and the ability to relate chemical structures and substructures in a way that was not available previously. The new system was set to exclude duplicate structures to detect the submission of chemicals previously screened. Decisions regarding the ultimate approach to evaluation of duplicate samples have been postponed pending further discussion of the implications.

The chemical repository was transferred to a new location within USAMRIID. A physical inventory was conducted and sample locations specifically noted for future reference. Many of the sample bottles were noted to be virtually empty. All bottles were retained for possible utilization as sample record should the need arise. The inventory included a visual estimate of residual quantities to conserve on samples. Actual residuals may be determined during subsequent specific samples distributions.

Samples were prepared for shipment to various testing facilities, individual laboratories within USAMRIID as well as separate laboratories and Southern Research Institute.

Data was collected for entry into the database in a variety of forms and from a variety of sources. These are summarized as follows:

1. Hewlett Packard computer database
2. Raw data sheets
3. Summary reports and publications
4. Quarterly Reports
5. Annual Reports
6. Diskettes
7. Tapes
8. Other

Data entry to the HP system was abeited prior to the start of this contract because of its anticipated start and because the HP system was full.

Of the compounds tested during the first year of operation, many positive results were obtained. Positive results were obtained against Dengue, Japanese encephalitis, Korean hemorrhagic fever, Pichinde, Rift Valley fever, Sandfly fever, Vennezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, vesicular stomatitis and Yellow fever viruses.

Further improvements of the new DAS computer system are expected to greatly facilitate the identification, testing and development of candidate antiviral compounds. Successful follow up of active leads is expected to provide momentum to this process.
