SUBJECT: Operational Report of 8th Battalion (175MM/8 Inch)(SP) 4th Artillery for Period Ending 31 January 1969, (RCS CSFOR-65)(R-1) (U)

(4) On 1 November the Dong Ha Combat Base Area received incoming enemy artillery on 4 separate occasions: 0855 hours, 1132 hours, 1306 hours and 2107 hours. No damage or casualties in the battalion.

(5) On 2 and 3 November no rounds were fired by either Battery A or C except for registration.

(6) On 9 November at 1800 hours Battery A at Fire Support Base C-1 (YD210674) received approximately 25 rounds of enemy 82mm mortar rounds resulting in 4 minor WIA and light damage to six vehicles. Combat operations were not affected.

(7) On 9 November at 1800 hours Battery B received one sniper round (small arms) at Da Nang Hill 34 (AT985719). One minor WIA resulted to a perimeter guard. No other action occurred.

(8) On 16 November Battery C was converted from 175mm guns to 8-inch howitzers. The first gun was ready for action and fired on this date. All guns were retubed and operational by 18 November.

(9) On 19 November Battery B moved the two guns of the 2nd Plt back to Da Nang (AT985719). No change in mission.

(10) On 24 November Battery C displaced to Fire Support Base C-2 (YD1164) to support 3d Marine Division recon elements in the southern portion of the DMZ. Incoming enemy mortar fire was received within 3 hours after the battery closed the new area. There were no casualties.

(11) On 9 December Battery A displaced from Fire Support Base C-1 (YD210674) to Dong Ha Combat Base (YD231589) and occupied temporary firing positions.

(12) On 10 December Battery A displaced from Dong Ha Combat Base to Fire Support Base Elliott (Rockpile-XD9854) to support operations of the 3d Marine Division.

(13) On 10 December Battery B displaced 2 guns from Da Nang (Hill 34-AT985719) to An Hoa (AT8647) to support, Operation Taylor Common by, the 1st Marine Division.

(14) On 10 December Battery A incurred one fatality from a vehicle accident at Fire Support Base Elliott (Rockpile-XD9854).

(15) On 20 December at 1415 hours at Fire Support Base C-2 (YD1164) the Battalion Commander, LTC Harry W. Brown, fired the 50,000th round fired by Battery C since arrival in country. Surveillance indicated an enemy bunker destroyed.

(16) On 19 January 69 Major Curtis F. Hoglan assumed command of the battalion from LTC Harry W. Brown.

(17) Between 19 and 27 January the battalion minus Battery B received a CMMI inspection from the XXIV Corps CMMI inspection team.

(20) The cumulative total rounds fired by this battalion since arrival in country through 312400H January is 149,355.

c. (U) Training: The battalion conducted a total of 132 hours of scheduled training for all personnel. In addition, special training programs were conducted for FDC personnel and for cross training within sections.

d. (C) Observation: The two battalion air observers during the reporting period flew in support of the 12th Marine Regiment and 108th Artillery Group. Air observers control fires of artillery and naval gunfire. The battalion provides one ground forward observer and radio telephone operator to the Mai Loc Special Forces area of operation on a semi-permanent basis.

e. (U) Logistics: Average daily deadline rates for the reporting period.

ITEM	PER CENT
SP Arty 175MM and 8-Inch	34.2%
Other Tracked Vehicles	32.2%
Wheeled Vehicles	10.9%
FADAC Generators	18.6%

f. (U) Civic Action: The battalion was active in a number of projects during the reporting period.

(1) Quang Tri National Prison: Assisting in the rehabilitation of approximately 350 former Viet Cong. Scrap materials are donated to be used in making furniture, kerosene stoves, and household articles.

(2) Two (2) MEDCAPS at Gio Ha and Dong Luong: Initiated during September and August 1968 respectively and treated a total of 2256 patients of which 1287 were during this reporting period.

(3) The Bao Loc School project in Ha Thank Village was suspended on 9 Dec 68 when Battery A displaced from Fire Support Base C-1 (YD210674).

(3) Casualties: Four minor WIA in Battery A from enemy mortar and one minor WIA in Battery B from a sniper round. One killed not as a result of hostile action in Battery A.

2. Section 2 Lessons Learned: Commander's Observations, Evaluations, and Recommendations.

a. (U) Personnel: None

b. (C) Operations

(1) Splitting the firing elements of heavy artillery batteries.

(a) OBSERVATION: It is not desirable to split the firing elements of a battery.

(b) EVALUATION: Battery B has been required to operate from two separate firing positions for almost the entire period of this report. Initially the positions were close enough to allow a single fire direction center to control all the fires, however a later move separated the firing platoons to such an extent as to require operation of two complete fire direction centers. In addition the requirements for increased communications, maintenance and transportation of ammunition severely overloaded the battery.

(c) RECOMMENDATION: It is recommended that when an overriding requirement exists for operating a battery from separate positions the supported or re-inforced unit be taxed for support in the form of additional personnel, communications equipment, and transportation.

(2) Fabrication of temporary gun pads for heavy artillery.

(a) OBSERVATION: A requirement exists for fabrication of temporary gun pads for heavy artillery pieces for use upon initial occupation of position.

(b) EVALUATION: This unit has experienced numerous difficulties in employment of the 175MM and 8-Inch (SP) weapons due to the nature of the local ground conditions. Even a small amount of rain causes the bearing capacity of the soil to decrease thereby resulting in the gun becoming mired to the extent as to make it extremely difficult to fire. In one unit a wood platform was constructed of 3 inch thick lumber and 3 feet engineer stakes. A sketch of this pad is attached as inclosure 2. This pad has served surprisingly well for a period of approximately one month.

(c) RECOMMENDATION: That heavy units be issued a reserve stock of lumber suitable for such pads and that such pads be built for use as soon as possible after occupation of position.

1. (C) Paragraph 1.g(1) as reads total assigned 522 is amended to read 552.

2. (C) Concur with recommendations made in Section 2:

a. Reference paragraph 2b(1). Not only is the splitting of firing batteries in direct conflict with XXIV Corps Tactical SOP paragraph 3c (pg 2-2-1) dtd 1 Dec 1968, unsafe conditions result from the lack of personnel and equipment to properly control fires in accordance with standing operating procedures.

b. Reference paragraph 2b(2). The requirement for the construction of temporary pads does exist on many occasions. However, I do not feel that a reserve stock of lumber is required to satisfy this requirement.

1. This headquarters has reviewed the Operational Report-Lessons Learned for the quarterly period ending 31 January 1969 from Headquarters, 8th Battalion (175MM/8 Inch) (SP), 4th Artillery.

2. Reference item concerning splitting the firing elements of heavy artillery batteries, section II, page 4, paragraph b(1); and 1st Indorsement, paragraph 2a. Nonconcur on the specific recommendation of taxing a supported or reinforced unit for additional personnel, communication equipment, and transportation. This is not an acceptable solution because it does nothing more than transfer the burden to the supported or reinforced unit. No further action required by higher headquarters.
