Beyond Coding: Human Factors in Software Engineering

(Intro) Suzanne Miller: Welcome to SEI Podcasts, a production of Carnegie Mellon University Software Engineering Institute. The SEI is a federally funded research and development center sponsored by the U.S. Department of Defense and operated by Carnegie Mellon University. A transcript of today's podcast is posted on the SEI website at sei.cmu.edu/podcasts.

My name is Suzanne Miller, and I am a principal researcher with the Agile-in-Government program here at the SEI. Today I am pleased to welcome you to a roundtable discussion exploring Human Factors in Software Engineering.

I am going to have my colleagues introduce themselves and tell us a little bit about their work at the SEI before we delve into today's topic. I will start with myself.

Andrew Mellinger:

Hasan Yasar:

Suzanne Miller:

- First Question: I would like each of you to tell us about your own experiences and observations regarding human factors in software engineering. What have you seen through your work in the field?
- Second Question:
- Third Question:
- Final Question: Looking ahead, where do you see the field headed?

Suzanne Miller: Thank you for joining us. Links to resources mentioned in our podcast are available in our transcript. This podcast is available on the SEI website at
